Council oks framework for city growth plan

By Lynne Locke

Upland City Council Monday night approved the framework for a growth management plan for the entire city. The plan will not become effective until the council adopts a resolution setting the point system which will determine which projects receive top priority for development.

The council approved the framework over indications that the action might cause the county to cancel its agreement to an areawide allocations on sewer hook connections.

The county Board of Supervisors had approved the sewer allocations based on the continuation of moratoriums by Upland, Montclair and Ontario.

Jim Birkhead, county senior planner for the West End, said the sewer allocation plan would be jeopardized if the Upland council adopted a growth management plan rather than simply extending the moratorium to mid-July.

Council members noted adoption of a growth management plan creates the same effect as a moratorium since the first projects could not be processed until the Planning Commission meeting July 28, more than a week after the end of the county moratorium.

"I don't understand how they (the Board of Supervisors) would paint themselves into a corner like this," commented City Attorney Donald Maroney noting that Upland's growth management plan is "certainly within the spirit" of all city-county agreements.

The council requested that Maroney and city staff members meet with second district Supervisor Joseph Kamansky, the county counsel and county planners to explain Upland's action.

Growth management

Meanwhile city staff members will continue working on specific resolutions to set the priority point system. Such resolutions will require council approval before the growth management system can be implemented.

The growth management plan "will not attempt to absolutely limit development, but will talk about the rate at which plans are able to go forward" for processing, according to City Engineer Fred Blanchard, head of the community development group which formulated the plan.

Under the plan, the number of residential units considered by the Planning Commission would be limited to 125 per month, 500 in six months, and 900 in any 12-month period.

The growth management plan would control the location of development through a priority point system, encouraging developers to build close to existing residential areas where services are already available.

Under the plan each development would receive a rating based on some 35 considerations including density, quality of construction (such as fire-resistant roofs and security locks), and impact on services including sewer lines, fire and police protection, and schools.

Developments which receive the highest rating will be sent to the Planning Commission for consideration, with lower-point developments waiting for later consideration.

Single-family owner-built homes which fill in vacant lots throughout the city will be exempt from the priority rating system.

Both homeowners and developers supported the plan at Monday's council meeting.

Dr. Robert Oyler, representing Upland Citizens for Quality Living, urged rapid implementation of the growth management plan, which he called "a good compromise" between the uncontrolled and over-controlled growth Upland has experienced in the past two years.

Developer Bob Sherwood commented, "As long as we have to have growth management, I think this is a good way to go."

Sherwood urged the council to reduce the plan's scope from two years to one year. Council members responded by setting a review of the growth management plan after one year.

Developer Richard Lewis said the growth management plan appears "extremely adequate" but noted he objects to increased development fees, which will be considered when the council adopts the enabling resolutions.

Heights voters ok tax hike

San Antonio Heights residents will have an increased tax rate as a result of a May 31 vote to increase the fire tax ceiling for the California Division of Forestry, which staffs a station in the Heights area.

Voters in Improvement Zone G countywide approved the 20-cent increase by a 65.5-34.4 per cent vote with 21 per cent of the eligible 41,717 voters casting votes on the issue.

The vote allows the present ceiling of 18.2 cents to increase to 38.2 cents. The hike will eventually cost the owner of a $50,000 home an additional $21.50 per year. The entire increase isn't expected to be levied for several years.

If voters had denied the increase, fire protection would have dropped with a resulting increase in fire insurance rates, according to fire officials.

BIKE-A-THON — Cucamongan Dixie Snapp does "clap" therapy on daughter Jennifer, who suffers from cystic fibrosis. The 1-year-old cannot digest food without the addition of special enzymes and must have clap therapy twice a day to break up mucous deposits which could cause fatal pneumonia. The Breath of Spring bike-a-thon, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Saturday will benefit cystic fibrosis research to help thousands of children nationwide whose life expectancy is only 18 years. The bike-a-thon will begin at Magnolia Park in Upland. For information on cystic fibrosis or to assist with the bike-a-thon, call 985-8808. (Photo by Lynne Locke)

Council oks plan for enclosure of channel

Upland City Council Monday night approved a plan for enclosure of a mile stretch of west Cucamonga channel in connection with construction of an adjacent mobile home park.

Covering of the channel will allow the mobile home park to use the channel top for street and parking spaces and will remove the open channel which presently divides the community like "the great wall of China," according to Planning Director Bill Young.

In return for the developer enclosing the channel at an estimated cost of $200,000, the city will install $75,000 of street improvements and extend a sewage line to the mobile home park at a cost of $25,000.

The council approved the plan by a 3-1 vote, with Councilman Bill Bottin objecting to the amount of money the city would have to pay.

Bottin said the project would help the developer at a high cost to the city and would create a closed channel with "two ends open."

Councilmembers John McCarthy, Ina Petokas and Hal Bailin supported the project, which would upgrade the area. Mayor George Gibson was not present.

Bailin said enclosing the channel would be a small start at "erasing the divisiveness in the community."

Mrs. Petokas supported the proposal to enclose the channel now rather than "waiting 10 or 20 years" until the city and county can jointly fund the construction.

McCarthy noted the open channel is an attractive nuisance, used by dirt bike riders and harboring rodents.

Future possibilities include enclosing the end of the channel near Foothill Boulevard when a proposed bowling alley is constructed and enclosing the north end when the city dump is converted to a park.

Also Monday night the council learned that $234,141 of federal revenue - sharing funds will be used to fund operations of the Police Department.

McCarthy noted that all residents of the city will benefit from the Police Department use of the federal funds.

But Bailin questioned, "What do we do if they ever stop revenue-sharing. We'll take a whacking cut in the budget."

McCarthy estimated the city would have to raise the tax rate 20 cents if the revenue-sharing funds were cut. The other possibility would be to cut city services, he noted.

In other actions Monday night the council:

- Approved the addition of $5 charges for night calls and oxygen use on ambulance responses. The new charges will allow the ambulance companies to receive payment for actual services and costs, according to a city staff report.

- Awarded a $34,185 bid for construction of water mains to Amick Construction Co. of Ontario.

- Approved purchase of a $12,365 electronic typing system which would cut secretarial overtime by providing automatic typing for repetitious material such as forms.

- Authorized a $3,700 expenditure to Arrow Truck Body of Ontario for a specialized truck body to carry the city's painting equipment.

- Learned that Upland's official population is 40,450 — an increase of 2,550. The increased population will provide an additional $6,000 yearly from state funds which are based on population.

GIVE YOUR APPLIANCES THE AFTERNOON OFF.

Most of the electricity we generate is needed by factories, farms and offices - so people can make a living. The greatest demand for this electricity is during the day. You need electricity to run appliances in your home, too. And the greatest demand for this electricity is also during the day.

Here's the problem: Because of the growing demand for electricity during the day, we'll have to build more power plants. And building power plants today is more expensive. That drives up the cost of electricity to everybody.

Now there's something we all can do to help: Spread the use of electricity more evenly around the clock. Edison is working with large industrial customers to help them find ways to shift some of their electric use to the evening hours. But most people prefer to work during the day, so there's only so much industry can do without drastic rescheduling of work shifts.

It's afternoon use of electricity that's the biggest problem. So you can help by doing some of your daily routine at night or in the morning. Perhaps you can wash and dry your clothes at night. Use your dishwasher at night. Iron in the evening. Bake in the morning.

It means changing your routine a bit. But if we do use electricity wisely, it will help to hold down the cost in the future.

Questions county's responsibility for support

Board oks bus line funds

By PETER WONG
County supervisors warned Monday they would not continue to pay the entire cost of operating the cross-county bus line but agreed to finance it for the coming year.

The supervisors made their comments as they approved the county's share of the Omnitrans budget for the year which will begin July 1.

Omnitrans, the county's bus operator, plans a budget of $8,548,980, including capital improvements, for the coming year. The county will pay $1,147,132 of that budget, up from $666,718 during the year ending June 30.

The increases are related to the expansion of local bus service by the West Valley Transit Service Authority, which operates as a part of Omnitrans. Some expansion is also planned in the East Valley.

As they have in two previous years, county supervisors said they will once again finance operation of the cross-county bus line, which runs from Montclair to Yucaipa, even where the line goes through cities.

"But there's never been to my knowledge a policy decision that it was, for now and all time, a county expenditure," Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa said.

"Although I would not propose that this year we do other than what we have done," Hansberger said, he wanted to put city governments on notice that they would have to pay their share of the line's operating costs in the future.

"It has now come to a point where there's an expectation on the part of the cities that we should pay that bill," Hansberger said.

If the unincorporated communities of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda were to incorporate as a single city, as has been proposed, "we would lose (some of) the funds with which we're paying for that line," he said.

Hansberger referred to local transportation funds which are generated primarily by a state sales tax on gasoline. Revenue from that tax is allocated to city and county governments for public transportation, and in San Bernardino County, for road construction.

As cities occupy more portions of the cross-county line, they should pay for its operating costs, too, he said.

Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino said that when the supervisors originally agreed to finance the entire operation of the cross-county line, they stipulated it was to be reviewed annually, and so it was not a permanent county commitment.

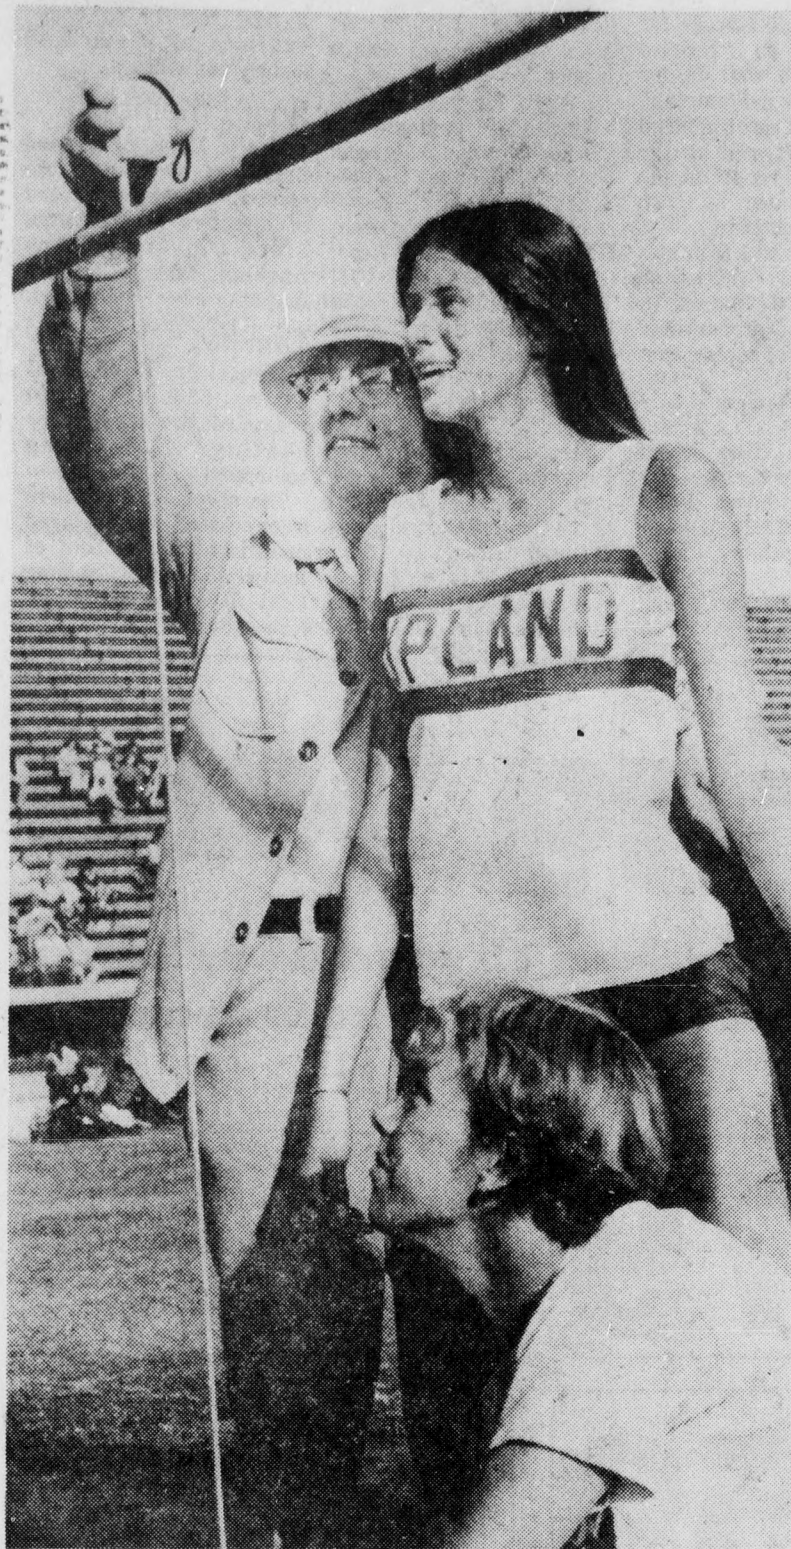

If the line's costs were to be shared next year, the cities along the line would pay about $200,000 and the county only $160,000, Townsend noted.

Omnitrans' bus operations are financed from two basic sources. One is a federal program which provide operating subsidies for public transportation systems. That federal money must be matched by local funding, dollar for dollar.

The local money comes from transportation funds of city and county governments.

Capital improvements — bus purchases and construction of terminals and maintenance facilities — are financed on a similar basis, except that the federal government pays for 80 per cent of such costs, and local governments, the other 20 per cent.

STATE CHAMP — Kari Gossweiler of Upland High School breaks out in a wide smile as high jump judge Alex Peitre announces Gossweiler's jump of 5-8 is official and indeed tied the CIF Southern Section record. Kelber named to advisory board

Rose Kelber, president of the Ontario - Montclair Elementary School Board, has been appointed to the advisory board of the Automobile Club of Southern California, according to an announcement by the club's board of directors. Mrs. Kelber is filling the unexpired term of the late Ralph Arnold.

In her capacity, Mrs. Kelber will advise the auto club board about policies, problems and activities in San Bernardino County that could affect the club's 2.3 million members and the entire motoring public in Southern California.

Mrs. Kelber is the director of Chaffet College's Program for Visually Handicapped Senior Citizens.

Supervisors approve two projects for Prado Park

By PETER WONG

Two projects essential to the continued development of Prado Regional Park south of Chino have been authorized by the county board of supervisors.

One of the board's actions will provide additional county funds for construction of two dams that will create large lakes within the park. The project will cost more than the $2 million originally estimated.

By offering opportunities for fishing and swimming, the lakes will attract more visitors to the regional park, one of two in the West End.

The board's other action will help decide how the treated wastewater intended to fill the lakes can be made suitable for fishing and swimming.

After little debate, the supervisors agreed to provide $180,000 as the county's share of additional funding for dam construction.

Most of that will come from what is left of the county's allocation of $1.2 million from a 1974 state bond issue for park development.

The rest ($31,500) will come from the current budget of the county's Department of Regional Parks.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which will build the park's dams, will put up the other $180,000. The corps has authority over the Prado Flood Control Basin, in which the park is located.

The $360,000 pledged by the two governments is in addition to the $2 million already set aside for the project.

Eight firms had submitted bids for the project as of April 13, but seven of them exceeded what the corps could award.

"Although one bid was within funds available for contract award, the bidder was considered non-responsive because of an error in his bid. As a result, all bids have been rejected," Col. Hugh G. Robinson, engineer in charge of the corps' Los Angeles district, said.

Robinson made his comments May 9 in a letter to Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino. Townsend's district includes Prado Regional Park.

Despite the project's higher costs, "the corps will be required to delete certain construction items actually essential to proper operation of the park," John M. Bernard, administrator of the county's Public Works Agency, said.

They include underground drainage lines, utility extensions and trails for bicycles and horses.

The county and the corps are expected to finance that work separately at a cost estimated at $500,000.

Construction of a boathouse and docks on the park's lakes will be paid for by the county from funds obtained through last year's state bond issue for park development. Under that bond issue, the county will get $750,000 for regional parks which serve urban areas.

In a related action, the supervisors approved $5,000 for the California Department of Fish and Game to conduct a study of the quality of treated wastewater intended to fill the park's lakes.

Local school district backs finance bill

A state school finance bill said to be written to bring "more money to the poor school districts faster" is being backed by the Ontario-Montclair School District.

District officials hope some features of the legislation, Senate Bill 809, introduced by Sen. William Campbell, R-Whittier, will go into an expected compromise.

The bill is one of three proposals for complying with the State Supreme Court's Serrano ruling that the state school finance system must be revamped by 1980-81.

The court found it inequitable that districts where property values are high in proportion to the number of students can net much more in revenue per student.

For example, Beverly Hills, a high wealth district, had $2,011 in base revenue per student in 1975-76 compared to $909 in Ontario-Montclair, a low wealth district.

To comply with the ruling, the proposals call for giving more state aid to low wealth districts and shifting some property tax revenues from high to low wealth districts.

George Duerr, Ontario-Montclair district deputy superintendent, said Campbell's bill is preferable because it would "bring more money to the poor school districts faster."

Ontario-Montclair's revenue per student in the coming school year under the Campbell bill would be $1,172, exceeding figures of $1,100 and $1,120 under the other two proposals.

The other two proposals are Brown administration backed Assembly Bill 65 which has passed the Assembly and Senate Bill 525 which has passed the Senate.

The Ontario-Montclair district is backing Campbell's bill as are other members of the Association of Low Wealth Schools, a statewide lobbying group.

'Oh my gosh' — It's the Rollers

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic

Screaming, fainting girls being pulled off one another. Girls being turned over to the first aid department as fast as the special crews can work. Girls dressed in denim pants cuffed with tartan plaid, cut-off mid-calf, striped, multi-colored socks, tennis shoes, suspenders, tartan patched shirts were an all to look occurrence that Rollermania took more victims.

Making their second appearance in the Los Angeles area in six months, Leslie McKeown, lead vocals, guitar, piano, synthesizer; Derek Longmuir, drums and congas; Stuart "Woody" Wood, guitar and piano; Eric Faulkner, lead guitar, violin, viola, piano and bass; and Pat McGlynn, guitar, drums, bass and piano, brought utter hysteria to the Anaheim Convention Center last Friday in the form of Rollermania.

With the stage made to look like a gigantic chess board (white and black spaces), Edinburgh's The Bay City Rollers gave their overly eager fans a taste of their next and fourth album "It's A Game," with the Rollers' next single, "You Made Me Believe In Magic."

Still musically harmonic and self enthused The Rollers poured it on like is so customarily throughout their tours. Yet as popular as the Rollers are, and they are popular, their audience, mostly girls between 12 to 15, are the real performers.

In a way Rollers fans are like athletes training for an olympic event — they give so much and are totally convinced they will succeed at everything they attempt.

They stake out airports, theaters and hotels, claiming to be reporters or even manager Tom Paton's wife. In essence they will try anything (and have) to get close or to learn any news about their heroes. And why not? The success of the Bay City Rollers has made Bay City Michigan, or for that matter their home town of Edinburgh, Scotland as famous as any city in the world.

Their fan club in Edinburgh boasts a membership of 300,000 fans worldwide and receives approximately 40,000 letters a day.

And their musically history? The Rollers have had six hit singles in the United States, including "Saturday Night," which reached No. 1 on the U.S. charts, and their top 10 hit "Money Honey." "The Bay City Rollers," "Rock 'N Roll Love Letter," and "Dedication" have all been million selling LPs.

So when the Rollers fans arrived 3 to 4 hours early, and when once inside screamed as if the world was ending Friday, they may have had a pretty good reason.

If you're a parent or a reporter, going to a Rollers concert can be an experience. Watching the young Rollers fans act the way they do is somewhat humorous.

At the end of their performance Friday a voice telling the audience to stay in their seats and not go to the backstage door because the Rollers have already left the hall was all the young fans needed.

It was as if the voice said "first...please evacuate." The fans ran as fast and hard as they could to get to the backstage door to get a glimpse of the idols before they left.

Arriving backstage, fans were told "The Rollers have already gone home, please leave the backstage parking lot." Well the security people might as well have been speaking to the walls for the Rollers fans were not about to move, and didn't. Instead the crowd kept getting bigger and bigger.

Rumors spread quickly throughout the parking lot. "Do you think they're in the helicopter," asked one girl. "They better not be," said another.

Security guards tried every tactic to convince the girls that the Rollers had gone home, but the Rollers hadn't gone and their fans knew it.

The security guards then tried to line the girls up in single file in order for the Rollers Limousine to get through. That started a wave of more rumors. At the same time a girl walked out of the backstage door, completely in tears. Other girls asked her "Did you see them? Are they still in there?" But no answer.

Fearing the girls would beseech the Limo as soon as it pulled out, security gave another game attempt in clearing the crowd. About 20 security officials ran through the parking lot screaming "Please leave the parking lot the rollers have gone home" "You're now trespassing, please leave."

Loud speakers were even used to disperse the crowd, and by this time security and fans were involved in name calling. But after more "please leaves" the fans had been assembled just outside the parking lot. Sure their idols were still inside. They all tried to get the best view as possible. Just what they were looking at wasn't clear. But they stared at it.

Some fans were lucky they parked in the backstage parking lot which was open to the public.

When it truly appeared that the Rollers had left, like security officials kept saying, garage door "A" started to open. First out was a team of about 15 security officials followed by a silver colored Limousine. In one brisk movement both Limo and guards headed to the other end of the parking lot and quickly out of view of their fans who had waited an hour to get a peek of their car.

And a peek is all they got.

Doobie Brothers tee off for charity in Calabasas

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic

Concert Promoters Jim Wolf and Steve Rissmiller along with the Doobie Brothers tee off Monday at Calabasas Park Country Club in the first ever rock and roll supported benefit golf classic.

With all proceeds going directly to the United Way, Beau Bridges, Jim Brown, Peter Marshall, Peter Haskell "Estab" from "Rich Man Poor Man," James Carroll Jordan and Penny Peyser also of "Rich Man Poor Man," Fred Williamson, Flor and Eddie, Roger Waters of Pink Floyd, Mickey Rooney, Edwin Starr along with James Pankow from Chicago became some of the first rock and television celebrities to give of their time on what turned out to be a hot and muggy afternoon.

The scoring system was the best ball on each individual hole, which means nobody really knew just how well their favorite star shot.

Most of the golfers were pared off in foursomes lead by a celebrity. The celebrity in 16A's group, trombone player James Pankow of Chicago became the winner. On the best ball system Pankow's group shot an unbelievable 51 for 18 holes. The next groups that had any sort of rock celebrities finished out of the money. The Pat Simmons group (Simmons is part of the Doobie Brothers) shot a 63 for 18, while actor Fred Williamson's group shot a 61.

The turnout for this classic was in many ways in the red. First it was during one of the busiest weeks for people involved in school due to this being the week for finals for many Southland schools.

Alice Cooper, billed as a strong participant for the tournament, along with Chicago's Peter Cetera failed to show up. Reports indicated that Cooper was making last minute tune-ups for his June 19 performance at Anaheim Stadium while Cetera, the powerful voice behind Chicago's 10 gold albums, was back in Nashville with his father who was taken ill last week.

And then of course you had the first reunion of the cast from "Leave It To Beaver," who did show up, bless their little hearts, but for one reason or another failed to find their way to the golf course itself. Jerry Mathers did look like the "Beav" only a little more overweight. Tony Dow did resemble Wally, and Barbara Billingsley and Hugh Beaumont did have characteristics of being themselves.

For the two celebrities I talked with, James Pankow and Fred Williamson, this golf classic was something that they both would have attended no matter what.

"I was up till 6 this morning," laughed Pankow. "But even if I shot a 900 I'd still be here."

Fred Williamson believed the tournament was one of the best organized tournaments he has played in, but said he thought the Calabasas course was no designed for spectators, probably referring to the massive hills that surround the area.

It appeared like everybody had a fun time except for maybe Steve Rissmiller, one half of the concert - promoting team who showed up.

And I'm sure what was on his mind was "Why didn't we sell out."

Mandatory retirement?

By State Assemblyman Terry Goggin

The occasion is supposed to be a joyous one. A long-time employee of some company has reached his or her 65th birthday and the retirement party is mingled with wished for a "wonderful" retirement.

But will that retirement be so wonderful?

The retiree can expect to live on a pension one-third the amount of the salary earned while working, meaning a drastic change in life style is inevitable, and the person will probably experience feelings of uselessness in this society where such great emphasis is placed on a person's occupation.

With life expectancy longer than ever before, the pensioner can look forward to 20 more years of a life which may have lost its stimulation and financial security.

Across the country, people have begun to rebel against the practice of mandatory retirement — "putting someone out to pasture" because they turn 65, not because they have become incompetent in their jobs.

Pollster Louis Harris found 86 per cent of the public agree that nobody should be forced to retire because of age if he or she wants to continue working and is still able to do a good job.

Some experts, watching the number of pensioners increase along with their life span, see real trouble ahead for the Social Security system because of mandatory retirement. In 1945, there were 35 workers paying Social Security taxes for every one person collecting benefits. Today, with 33 million Americans receiving Social Security payments, the ratio has fallen to 3.2 workers for one retiree and by the year 2035 it will be less than 2-to-1.

Right now, the system already pays out more in benefits than it receives at present withholding rates, forcing it to dip into its reserve fund. The reserves, now at $36 billion, will be exhausted in four years.

Some believe the answer to keep people working longer is they want to and are competent in their jobs. One study concluded that every extra year employees work beyond their normal retirement age saves their pension plan about nine per cent in the total cost of their retirement.

Many retirees would be delighted to continue working, on a full or part-time basis. According to the same Harris poll, one-third of the nation's over-65 retirees would still be working if they could.

At both the federal and state levels, legislation has been introduced to end mandatory retirement. Congress is hearing bills by Representative Paul Findley (R-Illinois) to ban mandatory retirement due to age in private industry and government, and by Representative Claude Pepper (D-Florida) which bans the practice in federal employment.

Here is California the legislature is considering three mandatory retirement bills. Assemblyman Richard Alatorre (D-55) has introduced AB 568 to permit state employees and teachers to continue working irrespective of age if they can pass competence tests. Assemblyman Mike Antonovich (R-41) and Fred Chel (D-58) authored AB 572 declaring the legislature's intention that termination from state service will be based on grounds rather than age. State Senator George Deukmejian (R-37) introduced SB 130 to prohibit mandatory retirement ages before age 70.

All of these measures face still opposition. Many people believe older workers should step out of the employment world and make way for younger workers who need jobs during this time of high unemployment.

The California Manufacturers Association says that without mandatory retirement, some employers might fire older, less productive workers earlier instead of waiting for them to reach their retirement age.

The issue is extremely controversial. As the median age in the United States increases, the problem of mandatory retirement is certain to receive more and more attention in the years ahead.

(Goggin, a Democrat, represents the 66th state Assembly District, which included Cucamonga and Alta Loma.)

McVittie to vote to override veto

State Assemblyman Bill McVittie (D-65) has promised to vote to override Governor Jerry Brown's veto of death penalty legislation.

"That bill has been approved by at least two-thirds of the members of each house of the legislature and that's a sufficient margin to overturn the governor's veto if all members hold firm," McVittie said.

McVittie, who introduced the first capital punishment bill of the 1977-78 legislative session, said he intends to work to convince other legislators to vote to override Brown's veto of Senate Bill 155 by State Senator George Deukmejian (R-37).

"When it became clear that the Deukmejian bill would be the mail legislative vehicle for restoring capital punishment in California, I worked closely with the senator to arrive at the best bill possible — one that can survive constitutional challenges," McVittie said.

McVittie said that at his request Deukmejian amended the legislation to give a jury the discretion of imposing the supreme penalty or life imprisonment without possibility of parole. That decision will take a unanimous vote of the jurors.

"There are sufficient safeguards in this carefully worded measure so that it will not be overturned by a court on a technicality. Capital punishment is inevitable in this state and therefore representatives in Sacramento should throw their support behind the measure that is faithful to the will of the people and without the kind of loopholes that have enabled the courts to successfully challenge the law in the past," he noted.

McVittie said he views a veto override as essential "so that the California public is not subjected to the agony, effort and expense of a campaign to put the capital punishment issue on the ballot."

"Not only will a petition drive consume huge amounts of money and sweat, there's a very real threat that an initiative statute that has not gone through intensive legislative scrutiny will be more susceptible to flaws," he said.

"Then what you'll have are a flood of court challenges and an eventual overturning of the law and we'll be right back where we started."

An override attempt must first succeed in the state Senate, where 27 votes from the 40-member house will be necessary. Then the state Assembly, where McVittie sits, would consider the veto. The 80-member Assembly will need 54 votes to override.

Assembly approves eyeglass legislation

Legislation to permit price advertising of eyeglasses has been approved by the state Assembly.

The bill (AB 221) now goes to the state Senate for further consideration.

The measure, sponsored by Assemblyman Bill Lancaster (R-62), would allow opticians, optometrists and ophthalmologists to advertise the price of eyeglasses under regulations adopted by the state.

The bill specifically prohibits false and misleading advertising and contains certain standards for the advertisements.

"The bill will permit consumers to shop for competitive prices and at the same time be assured of exactly what they are getting for their money," Lancaster said.

Current California law prohibits price advertising of eyeglasses.

Diseases costly

Cardiovascular diseases cost American industry about 52 million days of production each year, in addition to incalculable losses in management and production skills, labor turnover, personnel training and development, says the American Heart Association.

Role of churches in global community focus of course

The role of local churches within the emerging global community will be the focal point of a summer course at the School of Theology at Claremont.

"Approaches to Global and Intercultural Education," June 27-July 8, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, will be offered as part of the summer session of the school.

The two-credit course will deal with the design and implementation of educational programs to help local churches in the United States understand other cultures and countries so they might participate more meaningfully in what is rapidly becoming an interdependent world culture.

Particular attention will be given to the insights arising from the third world countries, and how conflicting cultures might co-exist in the new world setting. Also covered will be the role of education in furthering a just world community.

Christian Chapel expands Sunday school bus fleet

Christian Chapel of Walnut Valley has expanded its fleet of Sunday school buses to provide free door-to-door bus service for children of Walnut, Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights.

The buses will pick up children ages 6-18 at their home and take them to the special children's Sunday school classes that are held each Sunday morning.

"The children attend classes with others their own age and learn important Christian principles that will help them to become better family members and to protect them from being destroyed by drugs and undesirable influences," said a chapel spokesperson.

Christian Chapel is a nondenominational church that provided practical teaching to help families experience greater joy and harmony in their lives.

The Chapel is located at 1920 S. Brea Canyon Cutoff Road in Walnut near Colima Road.

Instructor of the course will be the Rev. David W. Briddell, assistant general secretary of the Education and Cultivation Division of the United Methodist Church's Board of Global Ministries.

He heads development of mission education resources for minority communities including research, coordination, personnel and relationships with ethnic communities.

For more information and registration, contact Dr. Allen J. Moore, dean of summer session, School of Theology at Claremont, 91711, or phone (714) 626-3521, ext 262.

This weekend on TV

Anita Bryant featured on 700 Club Telethon

Anita Bryant will be among the featured artists on "The 700 Club Telethon" coming live by satellite to television systems across the state Friday through Sunday. It will be seen locally on KTLA-Channel 5.

The telethon is being run to keep "The 700 Club" crisis counseling ministry and its associated television and radio program alive in this part of the state.

Cathie Taylor of Housatonic Records, Chico Holiday, Britain's Andrew

Culverwell and Roger Wiles will be among the featured artists on the telethon.

Christian Broadcasting Network President Pat Robertson will share hosting duties with Ben Kinchlow and John Gilman.

During the past year, more than one million calls for help have poured in to the 700 Club counseling offices in more than 50 major metropolitan areas of the United States and overseas.

The calls covered almost every conceivable kind of problem ranging from distraught people contemplating suicide to school children worried over grades or a lost puppy. Every caller was prayed for by nearly 8,000 volunteers in the United States and overseas.

The 700 Club program which the telethon supports has won the endorsement of priests and ministers from many faiths for its timely interviews, family entertainment, and crisis-counseling aspects.

Last year, the network won the Distinguished Merit Citation from the National Conference of Christians and Jews for promoting a spirit of brotherhood among the faiths.

The telethon is the group's only major fund-raising event of the year, and will affect cities as diverse as Charlotte, North Carolina, Washington, D.C. and Honolulu, Hawaii.

The School of Theology at Claremont and Loma Linda University (L.L.U.) Medical Center's Clinical Pastoral Education (C.P.E.) have joined hands to provide an extended quarter of pastoral education. The first class at LLU was formed in October, 1976. The program was organized at the request of several persons preparing for the ministry in the Episcopal Church and to respond to requests from pastors and others unable to participate in full-time training, according to Marie Toennissen, LLU alumnus and LLU health study coordinator for Covina Adventist Church.

The Episcopal Church has created a professional preparation program for persons wishing to change careers in favor of church employment. The School of Theology at Claremont contributes the academic aspects and Loma Linda University's CPE program is an option for clinical experience.

Myths about the flag

June 9-14 marks the 200th anniversary of the United States flag, making it among the oldest national flags in existence.

A number of myths have developed during this period as to how the flag came into being, according to a booklet, "The Flag of the United States of America," published by John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The stories about Betsy Ross making a flag for George Washington and a committee of Congress have no known basis in fact, although the Flag House on Arch Street in Philadelphia is an interesting historical museum. It's known only that she made some ship flags for Pennsylvania.

There is a wholly imaginary story of girls in Portsmouth, N.H., making a Stars and Stripes from ballroom dresses for John Paul Jones in July, 1777, which was flown from the Bon Homme Richard when the ship was sunk.

Jones does have a genuine association with a version of the Stars and Stripes. He hoisted the "American Stars" for his victory in the Irish Sea over HMS Drake on April 28, 1778, which is the first known baptism of fire for Old Glory.

On February 14, he had obtained the first international recognition for the Stars and Stripes when the French fleet returned his salute from the Ranger off Quiberon Bay.

At first there was no flag for the union of colonies fighting for their rights under the Congress and Washington used the Pine Tree Flag for his ships in Massachusetts Bay. There is a letter of Washington's noting that "we had hoisted the Union Flag in compliment to the United Colonies" on "the day which gave being to the New Army." That day was Jan. 1, 1776, when the Minutemen and others, previously serving as volunteers of militia, were enlisted as soldiers of the Continental Congress.

This "Great Union Flag," or "Continental Colors," was hoisted to the top of a 76-foot mast on the top of Prospect Hill in Somerville, Massachusetts, which was then part of Charlestown, and was clearly visible to the British garrison in Boston. The Continental Colors was the predecessor of the Stars and Stripes, but the reasons for its design are now known. It had the now familiar 13 stripes of alternating red and white, symbolizing the 13 colonies but, instead of a field of stars, it carried the Union Flag of Great Britain, for American independence was not yet declared nor desired.

It's remarkable how little evidence has survived about the flags actually used during the American Revolution. The modern spirit of American national patriotism did not exist then and the affection of citizens was primarily for their own colonies. A national flag was mainly used at sea or over forts.

The Congress took no action on the Continental Colors and didn't specify the Stars and Stripes until nearly a year after the Declaration of Independence had made another flag necessary.

On June 14, 1777, in reviewing matters dealing with naval and maritime affairs, Congress resolved: "That the flag of the United States be 13 stripes alternating red and white, that the Union be 13 stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation."

At the urging of Peter Wendover, representative from New York, Congress, on April 4, 1818, enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States by 13 horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be 20 stars, white in a blue field. That on the admission of every new state into the Union, one star be added to the Union of the flag, and that such addition shall take effect on the fourth of July next succeeding such admission."

As states came into the Union, the field of stars grew to 48. They were arranged in many designs before President William Taft's executive order of

Oct. 29, 1912, provided for six horizontal rows of eight stars each.

With the admission of Alaska and Hawaii to statehood in 1959, President Dwight Eisenhower announced a new design consisting of stars in nine rows, five with six stars and the other four with five stars.

Although this year marks the 200th anniversary of the flag, June 14 was not officially recognized as Flag Day until 1949.

Boating safety

Small boat skippers, attention! A dead engine miles from shore means, at best, an embarrassing tow-in ... at worst, it can mean your life. The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary cautions you to make sure that your boat is operating properly before you leave the dock. For a free safety inspection, contact Jerry Hampel, flotilla commander, (714) 629-5594.

KOTO RECITAL — Kyoko Schruben of Montclair practices for a koto recital 2 p.m. Sunday at Balch Hall, 10th Street and Columbia Avenue, Claremont. The koto is an ancient Japanese instrument with 13 strings held on movable bridges and played with ivory finger picks. The recital will feature Mrs. Schruben's arrangement of Bach for two kotos.

Causes of hypertension

By Wallace G. Frasher, M.D.,
President American Heart Association,
Greater Los Angeles Affiliate

Consider yourself lucky if your doctor says your blood pressure is perfectly normal. I say this because there are more than 23 million adults in this country who have high blood pressure (hypertension). Of that number, more than seven million are unaware they have this condition.

Hypertension is often referred to as the silent or mystery disease because, as a rule, its symptoms are neither seen nor felt by the individual. Only your physician performing a painless and simple test can determine what the pressure of your blood is.

Why people get hypertension is unknown but research scientists are still working hard to pinpoint the cause or causes of it. Although they have not come up with any final answer, they have come upon a few good leads.

They have discovered that body chemistry, emotions and heredity can play significant roles in hypertension.

In the body's chemistry, for example, the kidneys or the adrenal glands may send substances into the blood stream which raise blood pressure. Something may have gone wrong with their functioning to create this chemical imbalance.

Regarding emotions, you probably know that any emotionally stimulating activity will temporarily raise blood pressure in the normal individual. However, you may not know that emotional tension by itself does not cause high blood pressure but it can raise pressure even more if you already have the condition.

It's very important for those of you with hypertension to avoid those circumstances which may cause an excessive rise in your blood pressure. You must likely know those situations that can create stress for you — whether it's driving in heavy traffic, watching an exciting sports game, family or work problems.

With the fast pace and complexity of today's living, it's almost impossible to avoid all stress. For individuals with high blood pressure, it is an absolute must that they consistently take their medicine as prescribed by their physicians so that increases in their pressure due to emotional tension may be minimized.

Researchers have found that a tendency toward high blood pressure is often inherited. You might want to check family members to see if they have this condition. Those whose parents had high blood pressure are more likely to develop it than those individuals whose parents did not. It is a well known fact that blacks are more prone to it than others.

Besides body chemistry, emotions and heredity, diet is another factor that cannot be overlooked. If you're overweight, you will be asked to reduce your caloric intake. When you lose weight, you often automatically lower your blood pressure. Excessive body weight increases your risk of heart attack, too.

Although I've mentioned just a few points everyone should know about high blood pressure, I suggest you write or call the American Heart Association, Greater Los Angeles Affiliate, 2405 W. Eighth St., Los Angeles, CA., 90057; phone (213) 385-4231.

Ask for their free informative pamphlets on High Blood Pressure. In them you'll see graphic illustrations on what high blood pressure is, learn what damage it can do to the body, and read tips on how to control it. Also available in Spanish is "La Presion De La Sangre."

Life-saver

Collateral circulation is the heart's own life-saving method, says the American Heart Association. It is a system of smaller blood vessels which carry blood when a main blood vessel is blocked.

Hope Sunday campaign goal set at $1 million

The goal for the annual Hope Sunday campaign, the door-to-door fund-raising effort to be conducted on behalf of the City of Hope on June 12, has been set at $1 million.

"This campaign is undoubtedly the most urgent in the 64-year history of the free, nonsectarian medical and research center," said M. E. Hersch, City of Hope president. "The $1 million is vitally needed to meet the inflationary spiral in the delivery of health care at the City of Hope. We are hit especially hard because the City of Hope extends free care to those suffering from the major catastrophic diseases. We cannot simply pass these increased costs to our patients."

Actress Lee Meriwether, honorary general chairwoman, emphasized, "The $1 million is needed to keep up with the increase demand for services from the community it serves. It is up to the volunteer who will be calling at doors and the hundreds of thousands who give every year to meet this challenge."

"Dollars are needed more than ever before to wage the fight against cancer and leukemia; heart, blood and respiratory afflictions; diabetes and other disorders of heredity and metabolism."

The City of Hope, which conducts programs of free patient care, research and education in the deadliest of the catastrophic diseases, has an annual operating budget of $29.5 million.

Pre-business workshop set

Dr. Reed M. Powell, dean of the School of Business Administration at Cal Poly University, Pomona, announced recently that Cal Poly will conduct a pre-business workshop on the campus for people planning to start businesses of their own. The day's session will be co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The meeting will be held in the multipurpose room on the upper level of the University Union starting at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 18, 1977 and adjourning at 4:30 p.m.

Parade set at Pilgrim Place

Marking the Year of the Serpent, 50 children and young adults of Chinese descent will parade from downtown Claremont to Pilgrim Place on June 11, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The participants will bear vivid animals — a 65-foot-long serpent, a 50-foot dragon and three lions — made of colorful fabrics and sequins. There will also be horses and riders, ribbon dancers and a giant leading the procession.

Starting at Second Street and Yale Avenue, the parade will open the 10th annual International Arts Festival, sponsored by the Friends of Pilgrim Place on June 11.

Once the parade reaches Pilgrim Place, the performers will perform the famous thread - needle dance, the ribbon dance and other colorful movements on the green in front of Porter Hall. The group will again perform on June 12 at 2 p.m., but there will be no parade.

At 2:30 p.m. both days, the doors will open to Abernethy and Decker halls. Pilgrim Place residents with historic missionary experience will tell stories, illustrated by such rare objects as a 2,000-year-old mirror, T'ang bronze and Ch'ing porcelain, Peking embroidery and Nestorian crosses.

Some of the residents will recount experiences of life in China in the "old days." There will also be slides of the Chinese art objects in Taiwan and recent treasures unearthed in Peking.

In the tea room at the Pendleton Building will be a shadow puppet theater and on the stage at Decker Hall will be repeated short programs, featuring the Chinese Pi-pa, flute and harp. Finger food will be sold for the benefit of local Chinese schools. Tea and entertainment will be presented to the public free of charge.

The program will run both days from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., with the parade being held on Saturday only.

Participating parents and children are members of the San Gabriel Cultural Association. This group practices such ancient Chinese arts as mask making and shadow puppetry.

Hearty and nutritious

Try a curry surprise

Here's a delicious curry — make and serve with California style.

It's an eye-catching, hearty and nutritious entree, good any time of the year. What puts it into culinary news department is the fact that it is an all-vegetable and egg offering.

The condiments consist of interesting new vegetable treatments as a change from the usual peanuts, coconut, chutney, etc. The pickled zucchini and cinnamon beans can be made from the harvest of the summer garden. Even the marinated artichokes can be prepared with ease in your kitchen.

California fresh eggs complete the protein quality and this dish becomes a five-star nutritional offering.

Eggs contain almost every vitamin except Vitamin C and are the most complete protein food known to science.

This simple curry sauce is made by sauteing green onion and curry powder in butter or margarine. Canned chicken broth and light cream make up the sauce base.

The recipe calls for 6 hard-boiled eggs, two of which are diced and go into the curry sauce; the remainder are arranged on "lemon rice" along with tomato slices. Sauce is spooned over each serving.

California Curry with Lemon Rice
6 large eggs
Lemon Rice
1/2 cup sliced green onion
1 tablespoon curry powder
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sifted flour
1 (10 1/2 ounce) can condensed chicken broth
3/4 cup half and half (light cream)
Pickled Zucchini
Cinnamon Beans
6 fresh Home Marinated Artichokes or
1 (6 ounce) jar marinated artichoke hearts

Cover eggs with cold water. Heat to boiling, turn heat low and simmer 10 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water. Remove shells as soon as eggs are cool enough to handle. Then place shelled eggs in warm water, to keep warm while preparing rice and curry. Prepare Lemon Rice. While rice cooks, saute onion and curry powder lightly in butter. Blend in flour, and cook a minute over low heat. Gradually blend in broth and half an dhal. Cook and stir over moderate heat, until sauce boils and thickens. Dice 2 eggs into sauce. To serve, spoon rice onto individual serving dishes. Slice 1 egg on each serving, and spoon curry sauce over. Serve with Pickled Zucchini, Cinnamon Beans and Home Marinated Artichokes. Makes 4 servings.

Lemon Rice: Melt 3 tablespoons butter in 2-quart saucepan, and stir in 1 cup raw regular rice. Add 2 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, and 1 teaspoon salt. Bring back to boil, cover and cook over low heat 20 minutes, until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Makes about 3 cups.

Home Marinated Artichokes
6 small fresh artichokes
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 cup olive or salad oil
1/2 cup wine vinegar
2 tablespoons catsup
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons oregano, crushed
1 garlic clove, crushed
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
Prepare artichokes by boiling in salted water, adding 1 tablespoon lemon juice to prevent darkening. Boil gently about 30 minutes or until base can be pierced easily with a fork. Drain and cook, cut into quarters. Remove choke with a spoon.

In jar, with tight fitting lid, combine all marinated ingredients. Cover and shake until blended. Pour marinade even over artichoke quarters. Cover and chill for a minimum of 6 hours. To serve, drain off marinade, but reserve it to serve as a sauce for dipping leaves, if desired.

Marinated artichokes can be purchased in 6 ounce jars, if preferred.

Pickled Zucchini
1 pound small zucchini
1 medium-size onion
2 teaspoons salt
Ice water
1 cup cider vinegar
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice
Trim stems from zucchini, and cut zucchini in thin slices. Slice onion. Sprinkle vegetables with salt, and cover with ice water. Let stand an hour. Drain well. Combine remaining ingredients, and heat to boiling. Pour over drained vegetables, and let stand an hour. Heat to boiling, and cook 2 minutes. Cool. Store in refrigerator in covered jar. Makes 1 quart.

NOTE: The pickles keep almost indefinitely in refrigerator. They could be packed into hot sterilized jars and sealed.

Cinnamon Beans
1/2 pound green beans
2 tablespoons minced onion

1 tablespoon oil
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon dried mint leaves

Trim ends from beans, and cut beans in 3/4-inch diagonal slices to measure 2 cups. Saute onion lightly in oil. Stir in salt, cinnamon, mint, water and beans. Bring to a boil. Cover and cook about 15 minutes, just until tender-crisp. Chill. Makes about 2 cups.

DELICIOUS DISH — California Curry with Lemon Rice is this delicious dish you see above. Plan a surprise for dinner and add a dash of curry to your meal. There isn't any trick to the use of curry if directions are followed. Just don't overdo it.

Break out the grill

Barbecue time has arrived

When the weather is warm and you're in the mood for an easy-to-do barbecue, pick up a half-turkey at your supermarket and try a barbecued turkey.

Ready-to-cook, self-basting half young hens make perfect barbecue fare, especially because everyone can enjoy his or her favorite part of the turkey, light meat or dark. Fresh-frozen half-turkeys are great, too, because you can buy exactly the size you need, from 4 1/2 to 7 1/2 pounds, so you won't have to worry about what to do with leftovers.

Easy? Barbecued turkey takes no time at all to prepare. Just combine all the ingredients in a blender, then marinate the half-turkey in this savory mixture overnight. Next day, simply put your turkey on the barbecue over smoldering coals, basting with the marinade as often as possible. That's all there is to it.

Almost before you know it, you'll have a tantalizing, rich red-brown barbecued turkey, with a south-of-the-border taste that's lively but not too hot to handle. (Of course, you can always use a stronger chili fresca if you prefer a livelier taste.) Serve your turkey with garlic — marinated tomatoes, tacos and guacamole for a complete family fiesta!

Barbecued Turkey
1 frozen half-turkey, thawed
3 cups dry red wine
1/2 cup chili fresca (medium hot)
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup paprika
3 tablespoons brown sugar, packed
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon cumin
1/2 teaspoon rosemary
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Place turkey in large bowl or baking dish, skin side up. Place remaining ingredients in blender; mix well. Pour over turkey; cover and refrigerate overnight or longer, turning once or twice. Skewer skin to breast of turkey (at breastbone) to prevent shrinkage during cooking. Barbecue slowly, turning turkey on a spit; or barbecue flat on the grill, starting cavity side down. Finish cooking with the breast side down, raising the grill higher over the heat source to keep the skin from sticking to the grill. Barbecue for about 3 hours or until tender, basting often. Makes about 4 to 6 servings.

Nourishing custard from milk and eggs

There's something magical you can do with milk and eggs. It's called custard. One of the simplest most nourishing foods known to man, this delicacy may be prepared in many ways to enhance its basic charm. No wonder all ages, all tastes love it.

The variations on flavor and form are almost endless. Savory custards accented with cheese, herbs, onion and so forth make excellent brunch or luncheon dishes. They may be baked in individual bakers or in a pastry crust in which case they're known as quiche. Sweet custards are perhaps the most numerous and run the gamut from soft custard sauces to elegant molded desserts. Vanilla, chocolate and coffee are popular flavorings for sweet custards.

Whatever the choice, perfect custard depends on a few simple precautions. When adding hot milk to the eggs, beat it in slowly, stirring constantly to prevent the eggs from clumping. Soft stirred custards are best cooked in a double boiler or in a heavy pan over low heat. Baked custards are cooked in a water bath in a moderate oven. To determine doneness of baked custard, simply insert a knife in the center. If it comes out clean, the custard will be of proper consistency when cooled. Dessert custards may be served either warm or chilled while savory custards (except for some quiches) are best warm. Sweet or savory, simple of sophisticated, versatile milk custard makes a satisfying and economical choice for almost any occasion.

Milk as a beverage or as an ingredient provides many important nutrients. The big four are calcium, protein, vitamin A and riboflavin. There's a large selection of milk products for your drinking and cooking convenience.

Jack cheese and herbs accentuate this brunch or supper custard.

Savory Cheese Custard
1 1/2 cups milk
1 cup grated monterey jack cheese
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon marjoram, crumbled
1/4 teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
3 egg yolks
Heat milk to scalding, stirring often. Mix cheese with flour. Gradually stir into hot milk. Continue stirring until melted. Add salt and herbs. Beat egg yolks. Gradually stir in hot mixture. Pour into 2 1/2 to 3-cup baking dish or 4 custard cups. Place in pan with 1-inch hot water. Bake in 350° oven 25 minutes or until set in center. Makes 4 (1/2-cup) servings.
